

MOVEMENTS ARE ECOSYSTEMS

GROUNDING IN THE MOVEMENT

WED. APRIL 2ND 2025 4:00 PM | FPH WEST LECTURE HALL

Our movements are ecosystems that support simultaneous complimentary, and at times contradictory, moments that reveal our collective power; and different theories of social change nourish the ecosystem and build resilience. How do we move from the individualized, 'What can I do' to the collective, 'what have we been doing', positioning ourselves to learn from a continuous set of relations and responsibilities, reflective of a theory of change that aligns with our worldview? A talk with Michelle Martinez, Director of the Tishman Center for Social Justice and the Environment at the University of Michigan
